Romney Woman Suffered a Stroke of Apoplexy in a Dentist's Chair at Lafayette.

SHOCK WAS TOO GREAT

Special to the Indianapolis Journal. LAFAYETTE, Ind., March 4.-Mrs. George Oglebay, wife of one of the most prominent men in Tippecanoe county, died this morning at her home in Romney from a stroke of apoplexy, following the extraction of seventeen teeth in the dental office of Dr. E. E. Quivey, in this city, on

Mrs. Oglebay came to the city Wednesday morning with her husband, who is one of the directors of the Romney National Bank ernoon she went to Dr. Quivey's office, on Main street, and not until the dentist was through with his work did he discover that Mrs. Oglebay had been seized with an attack of apoplexy while in the chair. She never regained consciousness, but had revived somewhat when Dr. W. S. Walker was called. Dr. Walker said to-day that her pulse was good, but her respiration was labored. He gave her a heart stimulant, and then prescribed two or three hours' rest. He was of opinion that a rest would benefit her and was surprised a short time later to receive a message from Romney that Mrs. Oglebay had been removed to her home there. He was astounded by the MAY BE IN PHILIPPINES news, and was not surprised to-day to learn of her death. He said the shock of having the teeth extracted, in view of the weak condition of her heart, together with the hard ride of ten miles to Romney, was responsible for her death. Dr. J. W. Samison and Dr. J. C. Webster, who were called to Mrs. Oglebay's bedside, stated this afternoon that she died of apoplexy, and that the stroke was hurried by the shock. Dr. Quivey, the dentist, said this afternoon that a report circulated to the effect that he had administered cocaine was false. He insists that her death

Dextro Candies

You Can Digest In Quantities

Why?

"There's a Reason"

These candies are made from the famous Post Sugar, a variety of the group of fruit sugars, distinct and different from the cane and beet sugar group.

Cane and beet sugar heavily taxes the liver in digestion as proven by the coated tongue, fevered stomach and congested liver of the majority of candy eaters.

Post Sugar and the candy made from it is not digested by the liver at all, but is in reality the same as if pre-digested as can be proven by use.

A man can eat a handful of Dextro Candies and get all the fun, benefit by the strength the sugar imparts and pay no penalty whatever. Fact, and they are delicious. Sold at 25 cents by Grocers and Druggists and made by Postum Cereal Co., Ltd., Battle Creek, Mich.
